

is designed to be an annual, revolving program. Below is a schedule to follow.

CONTEST CYCLE - Change as needed

Month One

• Hold an in-house meeting to discuss Do The New. Decide whether to initiate it and whether to use the full or short form. If a "go," set a start date. Introducing the contest can be as easy as sending out a group email or as fancy as holding an introductory seminar. A company spokesperson can introduce the program to employees, or a local speaker can present a seminar to explain why innovation is important and how to conceive innovations. If the company has an annual employee meeting, that may provide a perfect opportunity to launch the Do The New Contest.

Month One or Two

• The president or responsible party names the DTN committee members. If named in advance of the seminar or introductory meeting, they can be introduced then. After launching the contest, employees will have two months to submit an idea.

Month One or Two

• The DTN committee meets to discuss their responsibilities. (See Committee Roles.) Each one makes a point of encouraging people to submit ideas.

End of Month Four

• The DTN committee meets to begin the process of evaluating the ideas which by now have been submitted.

Month Five

• DTN committee holds meetings to select winning ideas and insights.

Month Six

- Official announcement of winners. Awards and rewards are given, or invitations to DTN Celebration are issued and rewards are given at that event.
- Begin to implement ideas as appropriate.

Months 7-12

- Evaluate the impact and progress of each innovation that was implemented and the success of the Do The New program.
- Rewards are given to DTN committee members by the president or senior partner.

Repeat the program. Or, initiate a continual improvement program without a contest.

is designed to be managed electronically. However, it can also be printed out for manual management.

HOW TO ORGANIZE THE CONTEST

The president or senior partner of the company names four DTN committee members, each who bears a special responsibility. The president is responsible to reward committee members for their hard work as leaders of the DTN program.

COMMITTEE ROLES

The following roles must be adopted by the DTN committee members:

DTN Chairperson – Oversees the DTN program. Responsible to call and facilitate committee meetings; provide a written, monthly progress report to the president/party responsible throughout the year, and evaluate the success of the program toward year end in order to recommend whether it should be repeated. Responsible to encourage people to submit ideas.

Communications Subcommittee Chairperson – Responsible to encourage people to submit ideas.* Issues and gathers idea submission forms and makes copies or summaries for committee members. Serves as recording secretary of DTN meetings and provides minutes of meetings to DTN members within a few days following the meeting. Surveys employees toward the end of the year to discover their input and feelings on the DTN program and provides results to DTN chairperson. Names subcommittee members as needed.

Rewards Subcommittee Chairperson – Responsible to recommend what rewards and awards should be given for winning ideas and to recognize all submissions. Organizes official ceremony or method for presentation of rewards and awards. Names subcommittee members as needed. Responsible to encourage people to submit ideas.

Implementation Subcommittee Chairperson – Responsible to organize implementation of winning ideas. Follows up to evaluate the impact of the innovations. Submits monthly written report to DTN chairperson following selection of winning ideas up to the beginning of a new contest year and thereafter on a quarterly basis for two years if requested to the president/party responsible. Names subcommittee members as needed.

All committee members will evaluate all idea submissions and reward options, and each member will have one vote. The company president or partner-in-charge will break any ties. Committee members are not eligible to enter the contest, but will receive a special reward for their service. If the contest is held the next year, they can enter then, and new people will be responsible for serving on the DTN committee.

*The DoTheNew_Contest.pdf file can be saved to the personal computer of the Communications Chairperson who will then "save as" DoTheNew_name.pdf – (the name of the person being invited to Do The New.) This will be emailed to the named person. The second page of this .pdf must be filled out with the President's name, title, the date, the name of the person invited, their Do The New I.D. number, the deadline to submit the idea, and the DTN chairman's name. It is easiest to save the original file as "DoTheNewContest" (for example) and fill in everything except the employee name. Then each employee .pdf file will only need to have the employee name filled in. When an employee returns their .pdf to the Communications Chairperson, that file can be marked up in Adobe Reader 8 (free download) and emailed back to the employee for clarification, if needed. Or, it can be filed in an Ideas Submitted folder. This folder can be shared with the DTN Committee.
